Talking About What I Heard You Say

Below are four different examples of what kids say when they are in conflict. Find both their feelings and facts in each example. How can you say the sentence differently to tell how each person felt and what they thought happened?

1. Kara said: "Angela is so annoying. She always comes in my room and touches my things without asking even though I tell her not to do that. Every time she touches my stuff I should just grab one of her CD's and break it!"

2. Daniel said: "Bryan has such a big mouth! He's like a little baby, because he has to cry to all his friends and tell them things about me that I wanted to be kept secret. He should just mind his business and shut his stupid mouth!"

3. Roberto said: "When we play basketball she hogs the ball. She thinks that she is the best and that the rest of us can't play. She is so stuck up and greedy."

4. Chris said: "I was angry at Amy because you didn't return the video games that I loaned to you. I told you I wanted them back in a week and you kept them for almost two weeks now. So I took the CD player that you left at my house, and I'm going to keep it until you give me the games."
