

Pressure Canner Testing

Home canning is a great way to preserve a variety of foods. For safe pressure canning, University of Illinois Extension recommends testing your dial-gauge pressure canners with us one time per year.

A star ★ indicates a county where testing is available. Visit extension.illinois.edu to find contact information for local offices.

While testing is not available in every county at this time, work with your local Extension office. Options such as one-day testing clinics or drop-off testing in or near your county may be available.
