

Pressure Canner Testing

Home canning is a great way to preserve a variety of foods. For safe pressure canning, University of Illinois Extension recommends testing your dial-gauge pressure canners with us one time per year.

A star ★ indicates a county where testing is available. Visit extension.illinois.edu/where-we-serve for local office locations.

While testing is not available in every county at this time, work with your local Extension office. Options such as one-day testing events or drop-off testing in your county may be available.
