It was right there and if you needed something they had it. I miss their produce and their meats.

The variety abs the fresh foods available

It was convenient and close to home to just walk there and get what is needed.

Location and convenience

Literally everything. It was close and convenient! It was a street over from me, and now that my car has been broke down for a couple months now, getting anywhere is a nightmare, especially for necessary items, not limited to food. Kroger had pretty much everything I needed, and was within close walking distance without the assist of a vehicle.

The staff and variety.

If you forget something, you can just go and get it.

That if I needed something, it was right there, and that it employed local people.

Fresh meats, fruit, vegetables. They had food. Now they do not.

Convenience when I needed a forgotten item or ran out of something

I'm responding on behalf of my 84 year old mother who shopped Kroger in White Hall for several decades. She's lost that sense of familiarity and it's affecting her frequency of shopping for groceries.

Convenience and ease of having fresh meat & produce locally available.

Convenient

I am older and it was just a few blocks from home
